

ABOUT US

SEGMATIC

Segmatic brand was developed to create the perfect balance between the quality and price in the automotive aftermarket sector.

The latest proven technology is in the heart of the development and manufacturing of Segmatic products. While developing products, the company is focused on the high quality and durability of the products. The Segmatic brand has collected all the basic needs of the auto parts customers.

Segmatic brand range is developed by experienced European automotive component specialists. The products meet the requirements of European quality standards, confirmed by different ISO certificates.

Segmatic brand autoparts are consumable for Japanese, Korean, American and European cars.

One of the most important conditions for the trouble-free operation of the brake system is the timely maintenance of the brake parts.

Segmatic offers repair kits that allow you to restore the functionality of your brake cylinders and calipers without replacing the entire assembly.

Depending on the configuration, repair kits consist of guides, anthers, seals, pistons, O-rings and retaining rings, grease, caps, etc.

The rubber elements of Segmatic kits are made of high quality material - EPDM, resistant to aggressive environments (dust, moisture, brake fluid, temperature changes).

The pistons have a wear-resistant chrome-plated layer on the working surface, and all metal parts have a special anti-corrosion coating to extend the life of the brake unit.

Each auto part is made from quality materials on modern high-precision equipment and goes through many stages of verification from design to implementation, while recreating critical conditions at the stands, as close as possible to real ones.

An innovative service delivery approach based on best practices and the latest technology enables the Segmatic brand to present products at their best.

About company

One of the company's objectives is to create a first-class customer service.

Segmatic distinguishes the following main principles of brand development:

- development of production technologies
- expanding the range of products
- development of customer service

Offering in diversity is a reflection of the ability to combine the many different strengths and capabilities of a company, bringing them together into a strong and attractive value proposition that meets customer expectations.

At Segmatic, we are confident in the quality of our products and provide a 12 month parts warranty.
